

Suzy Lamplugh Trust “Stay Safe at Work” Conference

Suzy Lamplugh Trust will be holding their “Stay Safe at Work” conference on Wednesday 22nd May 2019 and wish to take this opportunity to cordially invite you to attend this event, which is supported by the National Business Crime Centre (NBCC).

The conference will be held at the Amba by Charing Cross Station in London.

Suzy Lamplugh Trust has been the UK’s pioneering personal safety charity for over three decades. We continuously work towards reducing the risk of workplace aggression and violence by educating, campaigning and supporting people to take steps to avoid, mitigate and manage risks at work. Our mission is making personal safety a life skill and a public policy priority, so people feel safer from the prevalence of workplace aggression and violence. We also believe this is best achieved when employers and employees join forces and work together.

The objective of this conference is to gather key stakeholders representing employers, employees, unions and the NBCC, in a solution-oriented setting, to consider the growing trend in workplace aggression and violence. We very much look forward to collectively reflecting on ongoing personal safety challenges across all sectors, as highlighted in our latest retail campaign. We hope delegates will contribute to feasible solutions that can realistically help reduce the pervasiveness of aggression and violence faced by staff, paving the way to reduce cost to businesses, individuals and their families, whilst supporting productivity.

Our conclusions from the event will subsequently inform a workplace Safety Charter that is underwritten and informed by input from delegates, helping to put personal safety and well-being at the forefront of business.

To book your place, please register using the link below, but note that spaces are limited. Should you have an interest in sponsoring this event, do not hesitate to contact us at info@suzylamplugh.org.
